DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 8 November 2006 regarding claim 1 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The amendment to claim 1 does not overcome the rejection based on Grabon et al. In particular, Grabon et al. does teach the secondary circuit 40 selectively transferring heat between the cooling circuit 10 and different areas (different heat exchangers 12, 14, 16, etc.) by controlling valves 20, 22, 24, respectively.

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 26 and 30 have been fully considered and are persuasive. The rejections of claims 26-34 have been withdrawn.

The Examiner acknowledges that a rejection of claim 3 was inadvertently missing from the previous Office Action. Since a newly presented rejection of this claim is set forth below, the Examiner has made this Office Action NON-FINAL.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1, 2, 4, and 6-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Grabon et al.

In view of the response to arguments set forth above, the rejections of these claims as set forth in the previous Office Action are carried forward and maintained.

Art Unit: 3744

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35

U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Grabon et al. in view of Tanaka et al.

As per claim 3, Grabon et al. does not teach the refrigeration cycle having a second expansion valve and heat exchanger. Tanaka et al. teaches a refrigeration cycle wherein condenser 24 passes refrigerant to first expansion valve 27 and first heat exchanger 28 or second expansion valve 34 and second heat exchanger 35. Such parallel evaporator arrangements are common in the art of refrigeration. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to combine this dual heat exchanger arrangement within the refrigeration cycle of Grabon et al. for the purpose of allowing the cooling circuit to cool more than one chiller at the same time.

Claim 5 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Grabon et al. in view of Tao et al.

The rejection of this claim as set forth in the previous Office Action is carried forward and maintained.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 26-34 are allowed.
